That's how I know that we have a dumb society, there are people who show up after the barbershops hours and had to be told multiple times no thinking "oh it's just one time." If more and more people did what that person did, the barber would close down in anger. If the barbers wait times are so long or his hours are unreasonable, go somewhere else. The barber will have to adjust or decide how much money he wants to make, this is common sense this is how you get people to do what you want. Also, you don't tip a service based on if the girl was hot or not. That would mean that you are in "tits and ass" and they now have signs for it. You tip because you want good service, you didn't go in 99 for "tits and ass" if you did than you have to request a girl with "tits and ass" and make a joke out of yourself. That's why I don't support tips only if you are taking up a booth on a busy hour, you are taking time to talk with her to be friendly thus taking her away from other clients, or if you had a special order and she got it right. We don't even know how much to tip the girl there's no exact percent, it should all be equal even if the person has a family that women will have to work more unless if you are doing it out of kindness but remember that the money can go somewhere else you also have bills to pay.

I seriously don't even know why we debate in public when you can just read books on this material. What people write in these books are not directed at you and are not being insulted in them so it is preferable because now what you are telling me is that you want to tell others who you have never met repeatedly why they should vote for your candidate and none of it is working. You could buy a Democratic book and right down every instance where you felt they were wrong and share to others who vote Republican to get the message out.

This Van Jones guy is so bad, I think Trump winning will only aggravate people even more when they don't see how the country will be the exact same! It may take a few months; it will take me a few weeks lol. The difference is that people who don't like Trump will be on the lookout for people they think are Trump supporters, I don't want that. I will not play this game. If only I knew, this Twitter website is so bad and so abused we will have to close it down. This country would be so messed up if I said "White people must run this country, Obama was terrible for America, we do what we have to, we don't want Socialism, let's march people to show our support for Trump " there would be riots everywhere from both sides.

Who talked David Duke into running for office? No one would get along with him.

They do such a terrible job running this country, how can I not thank these people? Even in the 80's if you found work you could buy a home, now you can't even rent an apartment until you are 30 and somehow people think this stuff happens by accident. They bring in both legal and illegal immigrants to make sure that I cannot land a decent job. This is not "my country" they sold me garbage, what country sends people to school but only has jobs that don't require any real work?

For all of the good that the internet has brought us, it has also brought us far too much bad. If not for people's social media accounts, no one would care where you went for vacation. Everyone wants to travel the earth but because you have it advertised so much, you now want it more. You accidently click on someone's profile that went to Iran (lol) and now you see it every so often. If someone you knew was rich and they told you about a vacation they went on, you would respond with "that sounds like fun" maybe ask a few questions and then stop talking about it in a week. But no a cop has to announce it to me like I would ever care. Now you have all of the girls competing with each other with their boyfriends taking photos spending $1000s of dollars, I now have to avoid those types of women. That isn't a skill, that's just you blowing money. Alot of what you people show I don't even like, I would far rather go to where a revolution took place but the person taking these pictures has no clue where that is. Here's the problem with living in America, you make plenty of money here to do these activities but if you wanted to tour the world, you have to fly to get there. That is at least $700 there and back. If it were $70 I could do it and I would spend all of my money and get all of it out of the way. You can't justify spending $700 dollars just to get there, I feel like I have to plan this out so much if I ever do go through with it, there are no trains in the Middle East so renting a car would be so expensive, if only it were $20 a day I would rent it for 3 weeks. You also have to pay for hotels, if I were in Germany this would be so easy because I could stay at a hotel for three days and come right back. I really think I can do this but I cannot stop and sleep somewhere in the car. I'm not spending $5000; the most I would spend is $2300 even then that is a lot of money it is so difficult to say yes to it. Do any of these people who show their pictures realize that I look at them and think in my mind "that's not worth it"?

You can question the early follower who wrote the Hadith's in a polite sense when they think of what Muhammad would have wanted for an Islamic society, there was disagreement after all. They weren't living in today's world, that's why societies make new laws, for example they didn't hotels back then or cars. So Sunni-Shia Islam does make progress, you just define progress in your own terms because you think the West is so fantastic, they got you so good that you overlook something so obvious. I can't help but think it is so funny because if these same critics made the same as those living in Algeria except living in America I can guarantee that they would relocate to UAE at the least because they love money more than they do the society they live in and that is fact. This is under the assumption that you live to be the same age but you no longer get your iPhone. Since you would move, means you like money more than you do these "western values" you boast about, all you can boast about is money here. Please don't say an iPhone is part of being in the West, that is a material what you just said makes no sense at all because it can be taken away but football on Sunday's practically cannot. So all you can say is that the money is superior here, that's it because you are going to leave this democracy you can't shut up about it. You just grouped two things together, admit it.

Someone during the brainstorming of the Hadith's was asked "what would your Heaven look like, use your imagination" and he then responded with 72 virgins with nice bodies and the women will also get a reward for themselves. Someone else said endless alcohol but you don't get hangovers from it. How awesome is that? I know what they are saying here, this is open discussion after all just like when you hang out with your friends except these are deep thoughts. Think for a second how does he know if there would be more or less than 72 virgins, how did he come up with the number? lol. I like how he included women also getting a reward in Heaven showing that he cares about women enough to think in their best interest. He's basically confessing that he treats his wife well by saying that.

I insist that I be flogged in front of my wife if I were to ever cheat on my wife but not for it to be broadcasted or told in the media so I learn, the problem is that I don't know how hard the flogging is and I wouldn't do it 100 times probably 10. I would look her in the eye and say "not again." It has to not be too hard so I don't get flashbacks when I am around attractive women than I can't talk to them. If there was such a way it would only be used if she or I went in for a kiss than I would slap her and I would be right to do so, I would want her to slap me if I were responsible. If it were record and put on the internet, it could be viewed as something sexual which it is not. More importantly, someone could question me, laugh at it, or bring it up which I would not be happy with and that is with respect to me, I wouldn't use your flogging against you if you were serious about it this is a punishment after all not bait for politics it's meant to help you. The goal is to get you to learn but if the marriage is failing than I don't view it as necessary because both my wife and I are at fault for not ending it. Does this sound like a joke to you? I would want my hands to be tied on rope. I wouldn't want it to sting; I would just want it to hurt. I can have it done 100 times but I would expect it to hurt the way I wanted. It should never be to scare you in fact I want it not to scare anyone but say "was it worth it" and if you didn't get it, we will do it again and again and again for every time you cheat we do this because we care about you. No punishment should ever be to scare you but to make you learn from it, if I were so scared of it than it shouldn't be my punishment we will have to adjust find something new like wreck my car costing me thousands, I think that could work as a substitute. I've never whiplashed before, it might not be that bad and I could do the full 100. My parents slapped me when I was younger, that worked and it did sting but that was slight. We do this out of respect. It's the same thing with the slave who took the sugar from the jar, they hit her to make her learn but I would rather they not because the innocent kid just wanted some sugar after a long day of work. Even if she were 18 I still wouldn't do it I would just say "I may have seen it but don't do it again there will be repercussions if I catch you doing it." I will have to think of removing this because I shouldn't be scared into not doing something, just to be wise. If someone were really afraid of being seen by their wife getting flogged, you would not do it to them, there punishment is them crying for hours because they have learned they are already scared enough. The women who Jesus saved got it so there is my proof that not everyone needs to be flogged besides you need multiple witnesses and how exactly can you get them when you are in a room alone with a girl?

At the end of the day, there are people who would kick the homeless but would call the cops if they were to ever get kicked by a homeless person, hmn. I do not side with the homeless, if they are causing trouble or are in your way and you tell them to move then get them out of the way even if that means hurting them because you have to make society go, not them. It's fine by me if they ask me for money I have no issue with this. Just like with the prostitute lane in Germany, we are shutting this down, if a homeless person is blocking your car on purpose tell them to leave. If cops ever give me trouble, just don't talk at all they don't matter society doesn't need cops I've already proven this.

Maybe Islam was to push the Christians into Europe and launch the Crusades later. We don't know where the world was headed in 600 AD. Without Christianity, there are no WWI and WWII. Muhammad gave the world the Quran, saved the Kaaba, showed how the Prophets were Arabs, gave a united language, united Arabia, put a Mosque where the Third Temple will be, and created the Arab World. I've said it all along and I will say it again, God trusts Muslims to protect the Arab world including Mecca and Medina, they won't let it be attacked they will storm in but I have no reason to believe that the Zionists will make it that far ever. We Christians will probably play a role in this too because of wars in Europe and America; there is work to be done. Good things could happen, we could get Turkey back or we could get half of Turkey which is a start but it is all where it ends and that is not in my lifetime.

I just remember thinking "WOW” when I really started to believe Muhammad is God's final Prophet. He really is all of these people were Arabs. I knew it because of Moses leaving Arabia and some of the 12 tribes still being in Arabia, it makes perfect sense to me. Muhammad even made sure to tell others "Say there is no God but Allah" which ends all Dualism debates because the Ten Commandments said "Put no Gods before me" when the people of Israel were confused and had made errors that the Pagans made worshipping those who are not God. Muhammad has to be telling the truth when he lived a humble life and he was told to read by Gabriel. Muhammad had his life saved by Gabriel, I believe it. Muhammad said "I don't know how to read" three times, that's how I would responded if I were 18; I would have said "my reading skills are poor Gabriel, I will struggle with more than three pages." Muhammad had read what Gabriel gave him, he woke up the next morning and it was as if he knew the Quran front and back. Arabia needed a leader and it got one. I admit when I read that it took 23 years to create the Quran that did seem suspicious to me. I can just picture the look in his eyes changing from being someone who wanted to do good to someone who would do good and could not be stopped, nobody could push him around. He even addressed doubters from all around the world by referring to them along the lines of "Pagans who walk in justice but are not allowed near the Kaaba." If you think claiming the Kaaba for People of the Book is unfair well hold on, don't you own property? Do you let me walk right in and sit on your couch? Just look at the amount of wars he had won and how many people are Muslim. If there were only 20 million Muslims only in Arabia I might not believe him but seeing how far Christianity has spread I almost have to without saying "uh". Muhammad is so relatable and the Quran is fantastic, it really liberates you from a society that is dependent on expensive cars. I don't even know where to begin. I was destined to meet that guy who was in the train from Iraq; I needed his support to push me through to find the right answers. It will take me months to accept this. I strongly believe that Jews, Christians, and Muslims are meant to pray different and the three ways are to separate us. I will purposely draw from the Apostles to better my Christianity but I will debate Muslims to help them restore their faith in their religion without giving them the sense that I believe Muhammad, I will have to say something like "I believe strongly in the New Testament, particularly Damascus falling, Muhammad is my friend not my enemy and I trust him that's what is important." God would want me to help these people out. Obviously there is material in the Hadith's that I disagree with because the New Testament explains it better for example drunkard verses the writers of the Hadith's not wanting you to drink alcohol at all by accident. I just don't think they got it because we all agree that it is sinning against your own body to drink, no one has drunk alcohol and learned while doing it, it is a waste of time but a fun one for many it's the same thing with gambling if you can avoid it then avoid it but if you love alcohol go right ahead, you are wrong to do so it's like when you fail a test in school and you admit it don't feel any shame at all. If you need alcohol to adjust, how could I say no when you will eventually get off of it? God isn't ever upset at you ever for drinking as long as you take care of your body. Here's more proof, you can wreck your brain drinking every night. My reasoning for not drinking differs from yours; I would like a steady one to two nights a week max later on in life, the less the better. No one has ever said "I should have drunk more in my youth." If the Ottomans were around today, they may have had to force some of the youth to cut back a bit by creating shortages of alcohol which is fine and I agree with.

They want one world government that would include one source of media, image the corruption and hidden data they would hide from you.

I'm not completely there yet with predestination because people I know in life can make a fortune and retire young and others could end up paying child support for three kids that is reality. I also don't know how free will plays into it but I do completely believe that God gave us all life for a purpose even if the purpose for some of us was just for salvation alone. Predestination could just mean that he knows who will be good and who will be evil; he knows how many humans there will be and when the world will end. The problem is that I wouldn't go up to someone and say that we were predetermined to meet each other, that isn't true because I have free will there will be some instances but they are few and far between, I mean think of all of the people who don't even bother to listen to what I have to say. If I tell a girl "you are lucky to be Islamic, this is a big deal for you, and God wants you to be honest with others" she has to believe it and not assume that I'm trying to use her. There could be some events once every ten years where you help someone get through a tough time, but it doesn't run your day to day life. Predestination is probably just fate; someone who works hard in life and is lucky will most likely be rich some day. Fate was not wrong if you didn't end out rich, fate just says "look you may or may not be rich some day." If you try in life and you want to help others, others will see it in you but sometimes people are too nice and get pushed around, they need to be told otherwise, you have to better grasp control of your fate in the real world remember you don't need an expensive sports car. Fate might only mean predestination but I extend that to the real world its fine if you don't agree with it in the real world. If this works like how I think it will than I will talk to others who believe saying "I am a servant of God who was sent to earth to help you out" but if the responses frustrate me or if people laugh than I will probably be quiet about it.

Think of all of the aspects you have to know- read, geography, populations, different perspectives, economics, religion, politics, previous alliances, most wars, history, leaders, nationalism, and heritage you also have to collect all of the data onto a flash drive. This is to get you to realize where we are at in the world. It's not that we stand out; it's that it requires so much knowledge then you have to figure out what side you support whether good or evil. Then we have to convince other people that what is happening overseas is not beneficial for America and we have no clue what to tell them because each person is different, some could think you are just ranting for attention, and some could even forget what message is unfortunately. This could take the average person 7 years to figure out, it took me 4. People don't have time for this.

Who do animals serve? That's easy, humans. Who do wild animals serve? Their instincts. The animal does not know any better that when I walk by it, I am not looking for a fight if an animal goes away than it is out of fear or instinct. I know animals have emotion too they can get scared. No animal or group of wild animals can be taught as a whole to have new boundaries with humans then what they already have, it will not be passed down from generations. It's my responsibility to know how far I can get to an animal without messing with them or else I'm being a jerk to it. I can throw a small rock at it if it is bugging me but I cannot chase the animal. That's why I don't like a portion of dogs, they are so stupid even if you train them not to be but cats will train themselves. I am smarter than the animal so it will obey my command because I provide food to it. Many animals aren't even smart enough to stay within the area I provide them with, that's why we give them shock collars. That's why we tell humans "you know better" not to shame them but to say hey maybe you overreacted without making the person feel bad about it.

Pagans made an error that the moon was God, other Pagans made the mistake that the Sun was the Moon vise versa. They just looked up and thought the Moon was their God. Some Jinn may have appeared their lifetimes and gave them images out of greed for that Jinn to be worshipped. I would be scared out of my mind if I Jinn were to talk to me, I would not trust the Jinn to be good or neutral. I can never claim they are a Jinn, the wrong person would give me a look and the Jinn can laugh at me. The Jinn should be able to know that I know they are a Jinn by the questions I am asking and the look I am giving. There are probably plenty of Jinns that want to do the right thing the Muslims told of one who fought on their side. I am sure there are Jinns who are hiding from within the enemy who will be responsible for helping the enemy feel so much shame because they want to do the right thing and confuse the enemy without them knowing. But I have no clue how many Jinn there are on earth, there could be 40 for all I know, I will just work under the notion that I will never meet one in my lifetime. I will still think (I know now) some of these people who hold office are Jinn's, I don't know which are but I get a good sense with some of them. I saw the photo of Adel Jaber, something was not right, he's an evil Jinn. If I could just talk to him once he would know that I know who he is and I couldn't hide it from him. If only I could go to a speech of his in America but I doubt there will be one open to the public. It would take tremendous courage to talk to him, stupidity too; he could have me arrested on terrorist claims so I won't talk to him ever.

"Blessed that I am not his other man" because there are those who question Jesus and end out mocking him by accident. They are mocking someone who died for them, no one would do that in their lives you don't mock soldiers do you? Many people laugh at his actions not knowing why he did it, that is an error on their part. I don't mock soldiers here who die, I may hate a lot of them but I don't cheer for their deaths I just hope they lose. If I were in battle with them then I might. I just think many of them are stubborn and can't be told otherwise so I don't like them, I don't wish death on them I just wish they quit. I only wish death on killers like Chris Kyle, I will tell you if you were affected by him so it calms you down and you know that you are right but I will never tell you if I think you would hurt someone like him because as we know that is bad for you. I can wish death on Chris because that is the punishment for killing someone but I would never post it on the internet in part because others get mad from it.

There are so many Jewish books; people could not distinguish between what was required from God and what people who weren't Prophets did. That's why they chose elders; they thought the Elders knew best. Jesus came to the Second Temple to say "I'm the Messiah, I have all of the answers", he performed miracles to prove it. God even knew that some would not convert because they aren't completely sold on him and they over thought the Torah that's why people kept questioning Jesus, they had no clue at all why he would have people work on the Sabbath in order to feed others.

We have free will, God gives you answers, you can chose not to be righteous.

A transgressor is someone who does bad deeds because you are fighting God whether intentional or not. God does not tolerate usury. But then Islam says as long as your good deeds outweigh the bad so maybe it is forgivable even when you stole from an orphan but who does that? Don't worry about corruption, that will be forgiven we are not perfect.

Jessica would absolutely lash out and expect an apology if she were being woken up, she would tell mom and get mad if mom did nothing about it, she is a hypocrite she expected you not to lash out. The fact that mom won't acknowledge it means that she is wrong, she is siding with Jessica, I am willing to never talk to her again. Mom would not like it if her parents kicked her out, she's not thinking straight. All of those cops are hypocrites and liars; they would hate to be falsely arrested but they won't pay you back and apologize.

The girl who was rude in the airport is not a hypocrite, she is just rude and it will just mean that her friends won't like her, there's no reason to dislike her, there's just no reason to like her enough to even be around her. If I had to deal with her and she was rude, I will expect her to stop and call her out for it and she won't get too mad so she is actually fair she will even make a case for herself that is a good sign on her behalf. She's not going out of her way to be rude or is feeling good about it, it is just her saying "not today, I don't want it, move", strange to think. I still think her attitude is bad for her and she either doesn't know or just accepts it. But entitlement is different, if she purposely walks on people than she knows she is wrong, I don't think she is that, she is just rude which isn't really an insult. Her parents didn't raise her wrong, they just haven't shown her that she's better off not being rude and she doesn't get it she can probably go her whole life that way as long as her kids don't become entitled, then she needed to learn a lesson. Mike by definition is a thief and a hypocrite, he would beat me up if I stole money from him and he would expect me to pay him instantly if I owed him money. We all have tolerance levels, it is never hypocrisy if someone expects you to be home no later than 12PM if they abide by that same rule. The rude feminist that I yelled at is a hypocrite and she doesn't even know it. She wouldn't like to be treated the way she does others who don't agree with her. If she had said yes to me asking if she liked being made an ass out of, I would respond with "ok I will mock you when you make a mistake with respect to you, I will do your definition of being friendly to you." Learn from her mistakes.

No wonder why I thought there wasn't enough hours in the day, I spend so many hours researching this material.

You have to abide by whatever rules you set, if the rules are not working than they must change through dialogue. Whereas you mom wanted to humiliate you because she doesn't know any better, she expected you to be her slave which you are not, she even set her own rules that is so illegal the phrase "my house my rules" implies that you are not smart enough to make your own together, she even wrote her own rules how embarrassing they think I am stupid. It is impossible to live with her, she knows it. With teenagers this is different, you want to protect them and you want them to know whose authority they are under. If they can stay out all night, get good grades, and be respectful then they are ready for it after all you want them to have unlimited freedom, they just need to be accountable and if they mess up, then it has to adjust, we want for them to learn. If they call and wake you up at three in the morning, then they aren't ready for it, they can only make so many mistakes with this I can then show that they are taking advantage of this opportunity and that they must adjust somehow since they are at fault. If I can teach them "I don't like your friend Ally", then they have to listen I sure will listen to what they have to say because I want to get it right.

They absolutely stole the Black Stone, they would not let you pray to it and we have no photos before 1880 so we will never know for sure. The last thing they want is for historians to analyze it.

The clock is ticking; they now wait on you so plan your debate. You are on the offensive. This is but a castle waiting to be brought to its knees, we raise soldiers to further the truth, and they fear us. We can prevent an invasion in Lebanon. You can raise armies with this material, people will be on your side, they will believe you, you can become a leader!

I hate two faced people where they act one way around some. Why do you have to talk to me funny, just say "get out of my store" it would make things so much simpler. Do you even notice that you are impossible to like? I don't feel welcome at all.

Vengeance is how you define it; a lesson may be necessary for someone who doesn't get it insulting them back is fine remember other people have to deal with them. If the other person treats you bad, do the same to them if they say stop then stop, then you can say "oh you told me so" sarcastically.

What makes these people so sick is that their military does it; their citizens don't get any of the blame when they promote killing innocents and stealing land. How many people in the West know that they are trying to conquer the Middle East? You can never hide something like that on purpose. We aren't allowed to blame their citizens because some idiot will yell back "they didn't do it!" But this same jackass will talk about Islam and how he views it as a threat to the world. I now hold up a sign saying "most Zionist citizens are responsible, they cheer when murder happens." I've seen a few of their Facebook posts I would know.

You would not like it if you took refuge in another country and someone held a sign that said "BOMB THE WEST" right in front of your church. With illegal immigration, they don't want to be here and it doesn't work so I absolutely send them back. They can't even pass a test, how are they going to tell me that they want to be here?

They will move out once they make enough money and I find that even more illegal that means you are using a country for your own gain (Mike).

Who would be a better parent, mom or Muhammad? That's a rhetorical question; I know who of the two would trust me. I would love to teach this to a kid who was abused.

These people would not declare war on countries if it did not help their image. There would be no reason for them to.

The Taliban is not Islamic. God would not make it so women could not be identified in public, they can rob a bank if they wanted. The same goes for those women who only show their eyes. There is a perfect amount of face to show now and I can prove it now. I just ended Anarchism with this as well. You now cannot be an Anarchist unless if you want to promote bank robberies, I'll pass.

I know people want to call it propaganda when the Syrian government shows photos of Bashar and his wife with other citizens smiling but it is also to inform you that things are going ok. It is to give people hope in Syria; there is nothing wrong with that. There are not lying to their citizens, they believe in where Syria is going. With regards to Ali, I find it excessive how many tweets he sends out a day, we don't need to hear his advice on everything and most of them are repeats I would respond with "got it" if I were neutral on Iran. I don't read all of his tweets that would mean I was him if I sat there and agreed with them. You can tell that I don't like twitter; it doesn't make sense with this constant reminder of who you are even if it is for those who care enough to listen. I would only want statements from leaders and updates, you the common user on twitter can debate with people somewhere especially when you keep writing "Trump wants to keep us safe from terrorist's dumb hippie." You can only tell your followers the same things so many times, at least come up with new creative attacks if this really is a war for you but even then you will run out after spending a year researching and doing it, I don't think you realize what you are doing.

You do not know the hymn so you cannot be a sorcerer but it is forbidden anyways.

Remember that countries are in a mindset, they will keep producing leaders that best reflect them even if you overthrow them. Even if you did, they will separate from each other. I will show you, I can read someone's name like Saddam's son and know that there will be another one exactly like him 70 years later so long as little changes are made in Iraq. That's how I know the allegations against Udey are false; his father would not allow it from him though some far less serious may be fact. I am telling you this because Udey is more serious than I am, I do not call people "monkeys" if I think they sucked in a match even if I knew they had dogged it. They will keep getting the same leaders in Saudi Arabia who stab their citizens in the back it doesn't matter what Islam advocates for, the country is ruined only a coup will get them out of this cycle. So if they get a coward (all of their leaders are) they will get a coward this is something that can be counted on. There will be no Princess Diana to come along and help them out. This is different in America where we had products pushed on us in generations which have altered many in America's ethics and way of thought. It requires the youth to break from this and decide what they want if they get mad that Clinton has her corruption allegations right before an election. People would not have tolerated that back in the 60's. It's up to our governments to have our best interests, its ok if they are a bit corrupt but it has to be below a certain point and the citizens must be taught the dangers of it. Morals are going to go down in America; people will take from Johnson, Clinton, and Trump. Clinton is the ultra feminist, Trump marries models and has an expensive taste, and Johnson smokes pot all day what happened to just politicians man? Isn't that Idolatry? I know these people are brought on purpose. Johnson bikes and he smokes pot, easy match. Sanders is the one who wants people to stay in college for more than four years which he will give to you for free, that makes sense. Trump is big business against illegal immigration and is right wing, even easier. Clinton is the one who wants women to claim they are being taken advantage of and she will step in to help them, easiest. It's ok to look up to them. However we are meant to draw from the Bible, you can take from Moses, Jesus you name it and apply them to the world around us, just don't say quotes from the Bible when you disagree with someone best if we go in hiding and then when they ask just say "James inspired me." I can tell people that these are my influences but only to those who get what I am saying because most can't rationalize drawing from the Bible but they wear shirts of their favorite athletes.....did I just type that not knowing why they make that mistake? If that is too difficult for them, I can just say Saddam Hussein inspired me. Following the Trump presidency, this could be so bad if he unites America, I could end out fighting Muslims here who no longer support Palestine because they trust Trump so much. I'm so convinced that everyone who despised him will get it out of their system within two weeks, they could end out liking him but say "I don't agree with these things he says but he seems to have my best interest."

Work on ignoring what another person's opinion is when they say something senseless, say "thank you for your opinion" and address something entirely different than what they have just said. Be very careful, you still have to study what they say like Derek Carr does. What people type on the screen mean little, which age you will come to accept this, you have to believe in yourself because few if any here will give you that chance.

Please do not condemn the people of the West. Many of them do not know what they support or it is part of their workplace, or it is because of a clique. I don't have the percent but most don't do the wrong thing on purpose, some use it to degrade others but this can be overlooked. Not a day goes by that I condemn the people of Saudi Arabia who chose to hate other Muslims who differ in faith.

Even if women cover their whole face was does it matter when their jeans are tight enough for me to focus on their asses? Sex sells, I could tell a girl who is covered up "thank you for not reveling your whole body", she will appreciate it.

It is not imposing your will if you give a teenager guidance. I tell the kid that they have to choice to accept it or not. There's no such thing as "imposing your will" if it is there to help you! Would you run in a hallway with a wet floor? It's the same thing with politics, they are not trying to run your life they are trying to help show you why to join it. You were given a brain so you can decide when what someone is advocating is right or not. That's why I don't tell people how to think with politics, it will just aggravate them. Palestinians are being oppressed; you wouldn't say "no, only if I am leading the movement" what if everyone said that? There would be no unity at all. This is how stupid anarchism is, they have no leaders it is all just democracy and fights. It's it worse than far right Capitalism because it implies that the majority is always right, when the majority is wrong, they will fix it? No they won't. How would they even know when they are wrong? They just wait for it to fail? That's the best you can come up with? Now we are back to who gets what because your job is easier than mine, that isn't fair and you are promoting it. These people really do believe in a perfect society, I don't even have to disprove them they can just say it. And I know there would be times the majority would do the right thing and go to the wrong policy and stick to it that is just stupidity. We should be careful when we complain to politicians but no one taught us this because the politicians will generally disagree on issues because they run on a state budget so pavement on a certain rode may not be worth it long term to them and we can't argue with them. This makes the teacher senseless who talked over me, how could he always be right when arguing over highway funding? Is every instance of paving done perfect in his mind? Did they pave the right roads or did they even have to? I'm not dumb, I know stimulus for votes that's why Trump kept talking about wanting to rebuild America he wanted to steal those votes from the Democrats who had bought them, smart! This is why stimulus is so bad; parties keep buying votes and renewing them that's probably why Libertarians do so bad they don't want to buy votes. No wonder the teacher shut up immediately and then later reported me to his adviser like most adults his age do. That is textbook example of imposing your will on me. You have to have someone tell me to stop because you disagree with me and your emails are so rude, really? It's important I get this because I don't want to question my boss or be pushed around. Even if your boss did more work than you, the boss has no right to harass you because he makes a lot more than you. The boss must explain why he thinks his coworkers need to do more work but this won't happen at whatever job I take thankfully. This is how to build trust and good relations with other people, you want to like your boss but let him know when he went overboard I would do it by doing less he would know. It's just a dumb job; I would probably just quit it and find a new one.

When you drink beer, do you grin or do you do it to upset God? Do you purposely be drunk in public to distort the peace? No, you do it for a good time, not to betray God. This is why you are told not to be a drunkard; some need to be told that because they make a fool out of themselves in front of others who don't want to see it there are kids in public after all. You could very well walk in front of traffic.

You must surrender to these morals in the Bible; they are for your own good so you don't end out like many of these people in their 60's who take advantage of others and have horrific social skills. It will take awhile; you may have to look up "Quran morals" on the internet.

If I said "I want to save a life, no Muslims are allowed in America for safety purposes" that would make no sense. That would mean that there should be no Muslims at all in any country and that it would be wiser just to force convert or kill them all; I won't allow that to happen. They could not have a country and I've learned that many of these countries have no terrorist's attacks and have maintained peace for thousands of years that means it is 100% achievable with the right education. In fact I would be a coward to tell someone from Lebanon "no" when they are fleeing to help their family, they would do the same for me. I will never harm an innocent; I want to show people that there is an alternative to these Democrat and Republican solutions. Reader, remember too that calling people an "Islamophobe" you have to get the definition right, that person arguing with you could be "uncertain" or "infatuated too much to their own country to overlook the truth". They are only an "Islamophobe" if they intentionally try to attack you because of your religion. They could just be against Islam, please view those people as fair-minded but resentful of who you are to the point of insults. Islamophobia is too broad but did you sit down with these people and explain everything in detail to them as you were instructed too? I wager not. If you cannot be civil, then you must walk away.

The goal of a message is to inform others. If you are just informing others of their mistakes or them pushing a product on you, then what are you really doing? You are wasting your viewer's time if you do this. You should teach others how to avoid these scams, not show every individual scam or address the same argument thousands of times form different people. You gave your response; your viewers know how you feel about something. You are trying to win people over, not show why the other person is not worthy of a debate with you based on the facts you have provided. The viewers will get that sense but the thing is that if it helps your case to address how you know more about the subject then the opposition, you can say that. You may have to say "you provided no examples of why you think the BDS movement is racist, all you did was yell."

If I advertise this as "Christian who will argue that Muslims are not the enemy, I will defend them" that may pick up well. It is essential that I copyright this material, that way I can sue others or at least show that I have the original source of it.

We all started somewhere with the religion; he gave us a chance so we need to return the favor, this is the least I can give him. I get to serve God every day of my life. There is nothing higher than that.

There is no "American Dream". They bring in illegal immigrants to increase the unemployment line for more division in society. Wake up. Live your life the way you want to. Only you can turn this into a positive, you spent four years in school. Think of the Lithuanians, they thought you had no clue of what you were talking about you can show them that you are more knowledgeable of material they've spent years studying; you can impress those who matter. Stick to history, religion, leaders, improving your ethics, dialogue, debate, and economics. It is on you know to find the people who are worthy to be around you. By age 30, imagine how much you could know, imagine the conversations with others who will like you for you! It is going to work! God wants to work with you, he wants best for you and you want what is best for him this is a team effort, he trusts you more than you can ever understand, he does not doubt you one bit. He needs you to help the Palestinians out here; this is a calling not many get. Holy books make us more intelligent, they also provide us with social skills because we now pay attention to what others say, they require us to focus on the scripture from within. What you do is justified because you have good intent. That's called sound judgment that means you don't have to worry about anything at all because you do what is best for God. If you still don't see your place, remember that the message must get carried on for generations so there will be more who fight the good fight on God's behalf, God wants everyone he can get this is such a gift. You are part of this fight; it says in Islam that there will be a join Muslim-Christian ally that means you will make it to Heaven. They acknowledge you as Christian!

What people don't get is that all religions must make the case to you. This is a good thing, we have nothing to hide. We can show answering "God told us not to be hypocrites" is proof that we must do it instead of debate it and claim that it could work if everyone were "just a bit of a hypocrite." People watch YouTube videos for a narrative in favor of their religion so they can say "haha, we're right" when they don't realize you don't need these videos, you go right to the source and then ask yourself "how does this relate to me?" You have to keep doing that over and over and over again. I swear by my method for most. Everyone is different, it took take someone into their mid thirties to get it.

It also must be brought up that the TV practically tells you to move away from religion and much of the internet questions you for it. Why exactly are these people trying to push me away from something I would want to be a part of? It's not for money we know, people would donate to local charities and the money would be the same. This ends out making people believe more and more because these religions have the answers. They even say that our enemies do things in hiding that means that Christianity doesn't. If something was written in 60 AD and it turned out to be fact, I'm going to follow most if not all of what they are saying. We all have this picture of a "Christian family" not realizing that family has nothing to do with Christianity, it is what you make of it. Most could say "oh they just want to be religious or they want to impress their family" when that has nothing again to with Christianity. These religions are telling you what the future will be, the media does not they will say that the world will not end but we have nukes. Even if someone said "oh well these religions were written with good intent to help others" but wait how exactly did they build the Second Temple or advance math? Why did people keep dying to help spread the word of Jesus'? They loved their kid after all, they did something tremendous. I'm trying to get these people who disagree with us to the point where they are cornered and say "I don't know, I don't know, I don't know" but these same people say that humans were dumb when they started out. How were humans able to interact with one another? They needed a common language after all. What gave them this knowledge to build a Temple?! I find it far more believable that God taught them rather than they learned on their own and if you said aliens.....wait.....how did the aliens know? Did these aliens you claim existed start with these superior intellect than us even to this day? I'm going with God being responsible and here's why God keeps telling us what will happen, you are implying that aliens are seeing into the future and know where Christianity will spread which is such a reach that they know so much about humans for them to know of two world wars that you are claiming that aliens are responsible for. You would have to respond with saying aliens were responsible for two world wars because these wars got us to this point. There's no way aliens can see into the future or even control humans look at how hard it is for the Zionists to win a war, it would already be over if they knew humans, these people who fight us are still learning. God determines the Middle East, not aliens.

It is going to be difficult to fight these people in a war someday because now they know so much about Lebanon citizens because of Twitter. They are going to guess what people will do; we better have the best military leaders we can possibly get. They already have the best possible military strategies and know a lot about the landscape. No one knows for sure when a country will quit during a war but they will get a sense for us. When they steal land in Palestine, they go by bits and pieces they know what the international reaction would be during an all out war.

If someone who wasn't on board was in war with me by my side, I would tell them to at least use Jesus name as a guide to restore hope in humanity so I can give them a reason to fight because of what Jesus had done for them. I think God would like this.

Part of what we have to do is separate Hamas from people with hope because we will beat them. These are really two enemies we are facing after all. So often you will see someone ignore the Middle East as a whole not because of Islam but to say "well they will never figure it out." If we support those with a bright future, we can show them two things one that they are right for us to support them and two that we believe in them. I totally get it if someone watched Nimr Al Nimr's speech and said " forget it, what country does this" but then they don't follow up with saying to themselves "well if these people had succeeded than this would not have happened" as if this would still happen under Shiite's which is basically what this person is saying when they say "forget it." I'm telling you "no don't do that, sign a petition or something because others in Saudi Arabia will take note of the unjust treatment of Shiites." This is far easier than people think and it is also easy to spread the word you can dupe someone by saying "we are reforming Islam." I can explain this to someone in under 5 minutes, you can too, a martyr was killed. Many people here don't like Saudi Arabia, all you have to do is hold up a sign that says "don't kill protesters Saud family!" I'm certain Nimr Al Nimr's family would have been happy seeing your support. This also extends to Pakistan because they are harming Islam's image but there won't be a war there thankfully. Muhammad wouldn't just start a war with people and I can prove it. I also would not like it if a Christian country had my own people killed in a war, we don't have to go to war. I don't think these people in Pakistan see the damage they would do to people in Islamic countries, now people have to get questioned because of them, that is selfish if ever.

I wouldn't be typing this if I thought you were disrespectful to your wife by mocking her or something, give me a chance here. I don't even care if someone in Saudi Arabia said to me "look I don't think women should vote" because they believe in it, I can also overlook that and I didn't want it to be brought up in a conversation. I look out for my image, my thing is if you are adamant about something and you are educated enough to have passed we'll say high school, then I want you as my friend. Some of this stuff looks very bad for you people internationally (I'm not trying to shame you in any way or get you to care enough to change it), I'm just here to say that you aren't dumb, nor are you out to get others. I really want to visit your country.

If you like someone's parents chances are you will like their kids who are your age.....wow, took me 23 years to realize that. It doesn't apply to me because I spent so little time with members of my family.

We don't vow vengeance on others because it is bad ethics. Once the person had learned from it, you don't bring up their past. You have to teach people a lesson if they are hitting on your girlfriend of course thankfully I would just dump the whore. Maybe the whore has emotional needs and she feels they are not met by you but she didn't bother to tell you! We will never know because we don't know if she doesn't care / was raised wrong, was caught in the moment (I would absolutely forgive her), or if she really wants emotional love that's real love if she didn't tell you thinking it would hurt you. I will get a sense of it but I have to make sure that she isn't lying about it. If I ask her she might say "oh yeah it was the last choice" and start crying thinking that's what it was when it wasn't. It is also important because it could be the last choice but she didn't want the relationship to go anywhere, she just wanted to show you off. I would not want to call a girl a whore and make her believe it because she did what she thought was best for our relationship. I can show her the good in the world. I will hold her hand and say "you are not a whore" only if she really wants it she has to appreciate and not call me out for doing a courageous act.

At the end of the day, we still feed, clothe, and house 93% of the world's population that is fantastic given the number of people on this earth. You can even take out 3% because they choose to do it. Now we just have to improve illiteracy rates for those in Africa to show that we love them. I don't want to over think this thinking that someone argues with where charity should go on the internet with me because that person would not be rational.

Some very evil people will try to ruin my life, I can avoid them or I can now stand up for myself. Life will be better if I follow these guidelines, I just know it, and this material will make me serious. It can't be an accident that four days after I think about how it is slander to portray Muhammad as someone who seeks out kids to marry, I find Christianity.

Muhammad allowed tribes to operate under their own laws if they were People of the Book. Many people thought Muhammad was messing with them and was trying to overtake the country. I would never allow Islamic people to go by their own court systems I would even laugh at them! I would say you live here, you get our judges. Tell Saudi Arabia you want a Christian court system, see what they say, they have to say yes. Muhammad would say "no I don't own Arabia, nobody does" but Assad is still allowed to declare war on these people because the majority support him. So while you can live in a tribe in Syria, you have to follow their laws and not attack his troops or leave the country because Syria is for all. Muhammad would not let you form your own country knowing that you would betray these tribes even if it were at a much later date! This allows Assad to attack them because he knows that their school systems will teach to hate Syrians and to attack the West.

It shows you how unnecessary the Jizyah is in today's world. We don't have tribes; we are already protected by our own countries. We don't form states within a state; we all operate using dollars, federal courts, and federal schools. All of our businesses follow US law, it's not like they can sell you a new videogame, have the disk scratched and say "oh well, sucks to be you."

It shows you how good Muhammad really is because many Christian tribes would probably say "well you are a good guy but you are way over your head, I'm not paying your tax for protection and I'm not your ally. You don't know what you are doing." Many Jews didn't trust him because if Muhammad is the one who speaks for Arabia, that could mean he's trying to attack other Jewish tribes and you have already heard of him declaring war on Jews. I don't blame them one bit because Muhammad could unite Arabia and say "haha got them, my Muslim soldiers strike the Jews now!" I know there are instances where people just surrendered to him, they may have thought they would die later on and said "we did our best, we might be able to get him back" to their tribes. Though we now know he would never do that. I just know both Muslims and Jews will not tell you this, the Muslims don't want Jews to seem reasonable when the Muslims don't get that they must be confused about the term People of the Book thinking that it means that Jews and Christians should convert and are the problem when we are not. I know there were tribes that betrayed Muhammad, but we can show that there were good Jews at the time to show how the enemy is not reasonable but if we explain that to someone on the street they won't get it.

Muhammad didn't want to kill people ever. At worse people would be sold into slavery. That's more proof he didn't pick favorites but Wikipedia will gladly tell you about how many were executed to scare Christians. When people read it, they could interpret that Muhammad (or rather Muslims) wants war if they do not lead the country when it is the opposite. I can just picture someone at Wikipedia saying "how long do you have, please take a seat, I will answer any questions you want" knowing that you have no clue about Islam. The stuff they post on their own website is a giant contradiction to the narrative being fed, if he treated women and others great, why would it reverse course after seeing Gabriel? The people who knew Muhammad best would have ditched him and said "we don't like you any more" it's not like he got idiots to follow him.

The internet has a whole website dedicated to insulting Islam called Wiki Islam; I noticed it was fraudulent when their sources about the Jizyah do not come from the Quran or the Hadith's. Remember the Wikipedia will tell you all about Jihad and how Muslims view all wars as religious to make people think that Muslims want Jihad when they don't! After all, you could read into the Byzantine Empire being destroyed and say "why was there 200 years worth of war? Do Muslims want to kill all Christians?" I remember reading "we will get them back" from Muhammad, I know what that means, that means he will take your whole empire from you. If you are a Christian and you really don't trust Muhammad, please get that the war with the Byzantines was a strike back for someone unjustly dying. Do I think it needed to be 200 years of war? Well I'm not Muhammad, but he is a serious guy. Just think if Iran intentionally targeted your child and said "no we won't hand the person over responsible for your child dying", how would you react? I can't even put into words the leader that Muhammad is because I know now he didn't do it to spread Islam but some unfortunately took it that way and thought it meant "take all of Europe, India, the rest of the world till they surrender." In fact during the middle Ages, Christians and Muslims got along great, there was no need for war. With regards to the Ottomans going to war with neighbors, first off they made an alliance with Germany and second every empire did that at the time except Russia. War was only when it was beneficial at that time, they had laws about only targeting soldiers until they surrendered, and that's what we all hope for in wars we want wars to end. All I'm trying to say is that if you really do support the "good guy", Muhammad is the good guy I have the proof!

Your boss is stupid; he doesn't know that the replacement will be worse than you. Some bosses are always convinced that they can get better so they purposely overwork you hoping to get new workers and see who will take it. This is done by design; corporations have definitely done this on purpose, there are CEO's that have done the work and the companies consider that to be a sign of leadership.

Here's the thing, I was slapped across my face if I lied to my parents so naturally I will not lie to you that applies to Muhammad. Although I have read so far into Islam and believe most everything in the Quran (keep reading this paragraph), I will never believe Muhammad is a Prophet. It was said to me at a young age that "Jesus is the Son of God; he is the Son of Man, my Lord and Savior" I will repeat that to you. If Muhammad met with me in person, I am convinced now I would say to him and this is with great respect- "Muhammad I love you and the good you have done for us Christians but you're 100% mistaken if you really think that you're a Prophet. You are a great Christian philosopher that I take so much from." That's why the father has to be a Muslim; the kids will follow the father's guidance, it's not by accident that they allow a Jewish wife. It's about getting the next generation onboard. I still have to defend what I will now refer to as "very cool Christianity with calligraphy", but I will always believe that Christianity is the way. Anyone who helps Christians, I'm going to help that is an instinct. I'm against Daesh so much because you can't evict Christians ever. I could end out referring to Muslims as Christians who follow Jewish law. If they said "no we are Islamic" I would say "yeah dummy you do surrender yourself to God (notice I didn't refer to God as Allah), you are still a Christian you just follow Muhammad's teachings." I know I would walk out of a Mosque and say "this isn't what I want and guys you are doing prayer wrong." My final words, I will address both Jesus and God, I may not even mention Muhammad. To me he is just a moral teacher that I agree so much with such as no more Prophets (but after the Messiah so I would not count Muhammad). I said once "I follow in your steps Muhammad" because to me he will always be a great teacher to learn from. Finally, when I say Jesus would protect me, I mean that Jesus is my Messiah, I don't even mention God because I studied Jesus, God was just mentioned a few times. It was always said to me that Jesus is the path to salvation. If you can picture me as kid choosing between God and Jesus I would run to I would run to Jesus. It's the same thing if Jesus were on earth with Muhammad, I would still follow Jesus said word for word no matter what, Muslims would follow Muhammad. I was not really taught God, I only know Jesus as my Lord. I will defend it; I will say "no Jesus is my Lord." I view myself as his Apostle because I take on the role. I want to teach this to someone because if a guy or girl was beaten and wanted it to stop, they could say "Allah help me", I would say "Jesus help me, oh God." I was also never taught the Trinity so by default I don't believe it. Just understand that I follow Jesus so much that there is no room for another Prophet, I wasn't taught Prophets but I learned about Adam and Eve, Noah, Abraham, David, Moses, and most importantly Jesus. So when I read the Quran, I will take (again 97% of it as knowledge) but I will call Ibrahim-Abraham. The names are too similar that is a bad example I could call Abraham-Ibrahim. I call Yahya- John the Baptist, and I would literally say "you mean John the Baptist?" I would think that is slang or his nickname and say "my homeboy Yahya." It makes no sense to try to correct someone. I was taught to pray to God but I think of Jesus because he is my protector, I know that much. I even said "no, no one comes after Jesus", I confessed it! That must be why in Islam it teaches you to "say Allah is one." It's no wonder why I relate more with Shiite's; they remind me more of Christians because they get persecuted! With Sunni's I don't relate much if at all, they are more of an ally. That's why on Western media they will keep telling you Islam is so different from the West; they want you to believe that their way of life needs to be fixed and I'm saying it doesn't. To me this is so surreal because I believe Muhammad is a Prophet but the only way to get me to believe he is if he came before Jesus and that goes against history. Jesus had saved all of humanity, I will believe that Muhammad completed the books but only if he was before Jesus, I will even think of him as an Apostle! The only physical way to get me to believe Muhammad as a Prophet (I was never taught the term) is if you lied and said that he came before Jesus this is huge, you can tell me that this completes the book but I will for the third time say 97% is true so you can't tell me that he completes the book just that he has the "most correct of the three books." Actually, you can say that he completes the book but I would have to add in what I hold on to which is a direct contradiction. I know (or think was never taught one Bible) that there are different versions. That's why I believe he is a Prophet of God, because of the story of him on the mountain it just sounds right to me. I know Moses was given the power of God so I'm going to believe Muhammad naturally because he won so many wars and so many people follow Islam and I knew Jews hated Christians they killed Jesus after all. I won't get it, I will just say "ok" casually, it's either he was before Jesus or he's not a Prophet in my eyes but since he is such a leader I viewed him as a Prophet. Had I have been taught that no Prophets came after Jesus; I would never view him as a Prophet. I love Muhammad but because my heart says otherwise I will always say "no one after Jesus." so I can view the Quran and learn from much of it. Don't think of it as a mistake or a fault or something to be confused about, many Muslims do not take from the New Testament, it goes both ways many Muslims will tell you Jesus did not rise from the dead or cleansing of the temple did not happen and will never believe it, so we all have stories we don't pick up. No one has the Scrolls of Abraham and no one on this earth now knows what stories from the New Testament carry over for Islam. It shows you how pointless it is to convert from Christianity to Islam because in Islam, you have Sunni-Shia, then you have different branches of Sunni. When Muhammad said, "Don't speak of a Trinity, stop this is for your own good." he must have meant that people would be divided more, someone might speak of a Trinity to get more converts from Christianity. God absolutely knows that people would not leave Christianity because not one of us can explain God and there are plenty of people who hold tight to Christianity. If the religions are the same, they are, then why are people converting at all? There are differences in all three on how to practice faith. Some people want a Pope, some people want a Caliphate, and some people want Kingdoms. We should only make the case to people who are not People of the Book; it makes no sense to argue at all, we are meant to enjoy each other's presence or at least get along with one another but separated by borders. I'm going to start believing in predestination because it is not something to get upset about that I believe Muhammad. I think we are just meant to be separate, it is impossible to unify us because you would have to get rid of one group. This is all for the same movement but different Sunni Shia Protestant-Catholic Orthodox etc., we all care for one another.

Let me be clear, you don't tell me your narrative and then change the subject when I ask you why you said that. With these Democrats they will always tell you why they feel a certain way, while they are 100% wrong they will be honest with how they feel that means they care about what they say, they get mad if you argue with them. However, these people are being taught to do that; that is what a snake would do, hence why she walked away people see beyond her lies what a fat cunt. Also, most people live their day to day lives, what would it say if I went out of my way to tell others how to think? Pastor Anderson accepts people closing doors on him, he does not look for people he is upfront with the Bible he's holding the Bible in his hands when he talks to them; anyone can tell him "no thanks".

I was talking to one of the Zionists who is a bastard, he said "it is just a name who cares", I care it is an insult to be called that. I can't even begin to tell you how many things are wrong with America, first that he would not get a felony for fighting someone 12 years younger than him. Not only that, if I struck first, I would have gone to detention center. They don't define what harassment is here, I could mess with someone all day long until they hit me. You can call a girl fat here for no reason at all, that's anything but freedom of speech. It's the same thing if you stole something from my house, should I wait for you to take it and hope you won't assault me? I know I didn't write the law here because the law is not on your side; I'm not talking about two people arguing with each other and the other person going too far. Could you imagine if they were still in Europe? What society would want them? I figured them out; they aren't rude to each other. I now walk in the other way when I see them; it doesn't matter if 10% of them are polite. They are losers, the whole world is not going to change for them and they own most of the world media; that should tell them something. They won't get it, nobody will like them and no one cares what they think but they teach their kids to figure that out of their own. It's laughable that they are that stupid to avoid telling their kid to "be friendly"; it is an endless cycle for them it shows you just how worthless they really are. With the Chinese that speak mandarin while working to insult others (another example of failures coming from China), they would learn overnight if people stopped going, these people would never learn, haha. It's like they are here for our entertainment. Another thing too is that people aren't dumb, they just were never taught how stupid these people really are; so they are doing something in hiding. If I showed how that kike was wrong, I could get the other person not to like them, more proof that no one listens to them at all. Also, you talked an arrogant person into supporting your wars against Islam but cannot locate Syria on a map, so you appeal to the dumb ones; you are just confirming that I am right.

What he did was the textbook definition of assault, that's why they have lawyers to buy their way out of this mess and you know what? They are found not guilty because the US constitution only protects money's best interest. In terrible China, they could buy their way out of the court system and be found "innocent" under Chinese "law". I think I was 11 years old for both of these events. The point if that happened to my kid, not only would he be beaten up by me, I would hurt his mother. This is why they marry each other; they don't want a second opinion they think they are always right when they never are. Where are they going to find someone who thinks it is ok to start fights at a young age? This wouldn't bother me if they didn't think they were heroes of some kind, yet the majority is all awful people. It has never crossed their mind maybe they are wrong on scripture since they say "yeah I'm right about this". They've been banned from over 109 countries; it really makes you wonder how Mongolians would have treated them. These same people draw Swastikas on buildings but then cover up who did it; they won't let that guy go to court. When these idiots try to impose their will on others, no one will listen. They are not relatable at all, they make the case for me to hate them; Don Buell was relatable and was on my side I would go to him for advice, not you. They are all failures. They try to use music to get people to act a certain way hearing it in a nightclub for three hours with liquor in them. They think people are dumb but the reality is that they too drink alcohol and go to bars to make an ass out of themselves or to sleep with a new partner every week; people don't want to be around them. What makes this funny too is that they are losing these wars; Assad is still in power the whole invasion of Iraq didn't work. I can show them who to get rid of, if they were to respond with "Assad must go" I would say "no Al Nursa Front will target your country, your priorities are wrong, you put lives at risk in the Middle East." Some of the enemy is fair about it, but they don't get that it will wreck their image if America invades on their behalf. Now they are playing around with Hamas, where is this going for them? They have to take small pieces from the West Bank lol. I know that it is going nowhere for them because they still have not started a third war with Hezbollah. If only they knew that once I showed them their trick the other person would mock them for not having any credibility, they would get furious. Isn't it ironic they do not teach you this trick in school but they want the youth to debate others? There's just no point for debate here, nobody would side with me, no one is in the middle; this is even after I showed them the trick the kikes use. It shows you just how arrogant the people at harvard are, they aren't split on it, they have no clue that they do not have to trust Muhammad.

One of these crazy person who was 28 threatened to hurt me at a workplace when I was 16, I stood up to him, he followed me, and asked me if I wanted to fight him, I of course said no. He then reported me to the manager a day later; his mom who he still lives with must have told him to do that. This backfired on him, he quit later on.

This idiot sells drugs and tells others about it. Why is he 28 years old and working at a supermarket.....? It wouldn't even be a close fight today had we have fought right now. I really do hate these people; I will not have empathy for any of them.

One of my teachers in middle school claimed "tectonic plates" were responsible for Moses crossing the Red Sea. She pushed her religion on me. Her fake Jewish determent she does not accept Prophets. This was the same teacher who allowed an atheist student to speak up in her class. She still wants that Nile to the Euphrates, too bad she doesn't get it :). She might be the least religious, but she sure does make for a good laugh.

This one young jerk who must have been a kike tried starting a fight with me, I fought him and instantly afterwards he was ready to explain what had happened, I was literally crying saying "no you won't believe me". His parents told him to fight others, they had to have been giving him candy or something, they must have told him "good you keep doing so" how messed up is that? Hell of all places would be reserved for them, could you imagine how I would feel if I just found a fight one day? At the end of the day, I win. These people live terrible lives and I never have to raise a child here, I will continue to dump everything I learned in my childhood for far better ethics based on the Bible and the Quran. A bully looks for those who are weaker, they know when to stop. These people look for conflict and then hide on the court systems because they know that if it were People of the Book run, they would never get away. I just know that I would laugh at person who would befriend someone who intentionally looks for conflict, we all have that one friend who gets into trouble but we tell him to stop and he listens, he makes the case to us, all these idiots would say is "it was anti-semitism", that's not a good enough response, haha. These kikes lie about the motive of a conflict that they started. I would wager that 90% of people are not fighting a war at home like a child; they are living day to day lives. They are found guilty in a court of law of trying to make the dumb ones here in America stubborn. They are massive hypocrites, if a Christian did that to them, they would seek vengeance.

Politics is NOT religion. You have no right to claim that I am oppressing you because I did not let you succeed or let you run your own taxation system. We need funding, if you don't want to be part of the country then just leave, you won't get your own separate city, then what ends out happening is that we have to move you. You ancestors were trusted with the land, that was your choice to succeed based on "not making enough money" which shows that you serve money. We will let you succeed, what will do is wait for your country to collapse; it is all caused by you. You have NO right to target Assad, he did everything he could to give you your own state within a state, you would not want me. Now because of the Arab Spring, you claim all of these rights that were never there. Also, you don't take armaments from countries that are NOT Islamic, I would invade too; this is not a joke. Assad doesn't want to break your heart, I will, I will show you all of the countries that are not Islamic, I gave you the option to leave Syria and you didn't. You've lost both the election and the war, how about you just leave Syria as a whole? You know nothing about unification and now you got innocent people involved with this. The enemy would love if Syria collapsed, don't tell me that in the future there will be a "better" Syria. Aren't you the lucky one? I would have had a one child policy for Syria.

My parents slapped me when I was younger, that worked and it did sting but that was slight. We do this out of respect. It's the same thing with the slave who took the sugar from the jar, they hit her to make her learn but I would rather they not because the innocent kid just wanted some sugar after a long day of work. Even if she were 18 I still wouldn't do it I would just say "I may have seen it but don't do it there will be repercussions if I catch you doing it." Some people had to be taught otherwise, had there been laws in place for what is unjust slave abuse, then no one would have done it knowing that they would go to jail for it.